Kids for Turtles is a symbolic name – it combines children, who are our future, and turtles from our past - to form a promising outlook for our environment. Turtles have lived on earth for 250 million years without becoming extinct, unlike many other species. Within the past few decades, human activity has had a devastating impact on turtle populations. Turtles are a 'canary in the coal mine'.

Our children will live in a world we have left them and they will be responsible for it. This is why it is essential that our young people learn about our natural environment.

Long Point - Norfolk Chapter

About Us

Kids for Turtles Environmental Education was founded in May 2006 by Bob Bowles of Orillia, in response to a young girl's letter concerned with the number of turtles being hit by vehicles on her road. Although initially formed to help protect crossing turtles, the organization has since expanded to encompass many other current environmental issues such as Species at Risk, Biodiversity and Invasive Species.

Kids for Turtles: Long Point – Norfolk established a chapter in March 2009. It's a natural fit, as we are located in the heart of the Carolinian forest region – a region boasting the highest diversity of plants and animals and home to some of the most significant populations of at-risk reptile species and their habitats in Canada!

What Does Kids for Turtles Do?

Kids for Turtles is dedicated to increasing public awareness of the importance of protecting wildlife species and their habitats as well as addressing 'nature deficit disorder' in youth. We strongly believe that environmental education and direct connections with nature will foster an understanding and appreciation in youth that is vital for healthy children and, ultimately, a healthy world.

Kids for Turtles provides opportunities for children and their families to get actively engaged in various community-based, local environmental projects and events such as shoreline cleanups, youth camps, and Earth Day activities.

Join Kids for Turtles: Long Point - Norfolk

Calling all kids!! If you love spending your days outside, maybe going for nature walks or catching frogs in the pond, then this is the club for you! When you become a member, you can get involved in many of the fun and exciting programs that are offered throughout the year – programs that will be sure to satisfy all your nature needs. You will also receive our quarterly newsletter, 'The Snapper', which is full of interesting stories, kid friendly games and our Nature Watch checklist.

But don't let our name fool you – Kids for Turtles is not just for kids, but people of all ages. Anyone can benefit from our programs, whether it's active involvement in one of our projects, enjoying a clean beach or simply knowing that you are making a positive difference in the lives of many young naturalists. Please join us by becoming a member and showing your support! Membership fees and donations go directly to the local Long Point – Norfolk chapter to help fund the organization's many projects and activities.

Kids for Turtles is a project of the Long Point World Biosphere Reserve Foundation, a registered charitable, non-profit organization.
